Dian Katz

2012 has been good for rocker gal Dian Katz. She performed at several popular venues throughout southern California, increasing her fan base tenfold. Some of her highlights include playing the huge SummerFest in SoCal and being invited to play the Indie Entertainment Summit, which was recognized by the US Congress. In addition to playing in her rock band, Dian continued to host Red Carpets with A-List celebrities such as Betty White to Bravo's Top Chef Awards with Fran Drescher.

Dian is also celebrating her birthday this month, so Happy Birthday! Stay up to date on her latest projects by visiting her website.

PADNET

Public access television is making a strong come back across the USA, especially in southern California. The past three years have left public access TV all but dead, due to a change in legislation. It's now back in SoCal, due to popular demand. Many new programs will be airing in 2013, including shows about the arts, entertainment and culture. There are many opportunities available, such as producing a show, hosting or being a guest. Visit their website to learn more.
